Abstract: What is bilingual education? Bilingual education is becoming the trend of last decades, but not every parent knows what this word actually means. The essence of bilingual education is the bilingual presentation of school subjects. It is not limited to grammar, vocabulary or just listening cartoons in English. A foreign language becomes a mechanism of cognition, not its purpose. So the subjects like mathematics, biology, physics, art history and foreign literature are taught exclusively in English. Russian language or Mother Tongue is educated in Russian or Mother Tongue class only. However, a number of schools and kindergartens consider themselves to be «bilingual», just teaching kids to English only twice a week. This article provides information about real bilingual education, about its opportunities and obstacles and about development and implementation of intercultural bilingual education.

Key words: bilingual education, English, IELTS, TOEFL, CIS country, Karakalpakstan, Uzbekistan, language barrier, Facebook, Mark Zuckerberg, Jack Ma, Shakira, Dutch, German, Russian.

Introduction

Key advantage of bilingual learning is a deep comprehending of the logic of the language. The child ceases to perceive English as a foreign language. He begins to speak and think fluently in it. This starts off new prospects for self-realization:

Easily entering to any prestigious Universities. As bilingual children receive IELTS or TOEFL certificates without any problems, therefore they can be admitted in any chosen university. Most of the worldwide universities offer a training format in English.

A highly paid job. It is fact that people who have a clue of English language earns 20% money more than usual worker. And this applies only CIS countries.

Access to scientific publications. Approximately 80% of internet Scientific information and paper are provided in English language.

Simplified learning of other West Germanic group. German and Dutch languages seems easier for the ones who already know English since they have some similarities.

This list only a small number of advantages of bilingual learning. Regular English classes cannot give perfect result. In regular English class process builds up a «Language barrier».

Today there can be found bilingual school in Karakalpakstan, too. However, most parents have the fear for giving their children to educate there, since they think that they will forget about their Mother Language. In actual fact, child can face with the two language difficulty in the term of using it through 1 to 2 years. After getting accustomed to English and to his Mother language, he/she will know in which circumstances to utilize specific language clearly.

Main body

Over the last 20 years the study of bilingualism has attracted a big amount of attraction from linguists, neuroscientist, cognitive scientists and even psychologists. And how many people in the world are bilingual and how many of them are successful? It is shown that 43% of world population is bilingual. Almost half of all people who are residing in Planet can effectively communicate in more than one language.

There are number of successful people who have common features. One is that they are hardworking and ambitious. Two, they do not let the failure and mistakes to prevent them from success. Three, most of them know more than one language. As speaking multiple languages is not only benefit to seem impressing in society. Bilingual people's brain are also sharper and appears better at multitasking. Also it opens up to more career opportunities. So there is provided some successful people who can inspire to be bilingual.

Mark Zuckerberg. Story that turned from mess to technological wealth. It is obvious that knowing Mandarin language helped him in this way. He claims that he learns Mandarin on a daily basis, to have communication with his wife's relatives. But there is speculation that he learnt it with business reason (like potential negotiations with Chinese government about its ban on Facebook platform).

Jack Ma. This person who started the online shopping market in China which is now considered to be the sixth largest internet company was once 12 years old boy who rode his bike to local hotel in order to give free tours in English to the tourists. He eventually became an English teacher and later that all led to his success as a tech leader.

Shakira. In addition to being a stunning singer with impressing voice. She is a polyglot woman who speaks in Spanish, English, French, Russian, German and Mandarin languages fluently. Perhaps as a result she has managed to sell millions of records worldwide.

These are the most deserving people who prove that knowing more than one language can open up a tremendous amount of facilities into bright future.

Conclusion

As today bilingual learning is developing internationally. From 10522 schools in Republic of Uzbekistan bilingual Schools are a total of 221. In actual fact, it is not enough to children in whose hands there is progress of the country. Children who know another language apart from their Mother tongue will have the power to contribute themselves to society's development and implementation. So if the government tends to set up new bilingual schools in which children will be taught to secular sciences in the foreign language, there will be a great possibility of economic, social and political growth.
